Williams College is not at the present time under anything approximating normal conditions of enrollment or class organization. In view of these facts, the staff of the GUL felt that the traditional senior class book should be supplanted by a more appropriate and inclusive year book, one more truly representative of the undergraduate body as a whole. With the present confusion and intermingling of classes and age groups, it would be difficult indeed, not to say a distortion of facts, to publish normal class histories of "freshmen", "sophomores", "juniors", and "seniors". The result, then, is something of a precedent in the eighty-nine years of publication of this volume. The fraternities, which once occupied so prominent a place on campus, are, for the moment at least, defunct. There was no football season. Many campus activities are as yet unrevived. The college known and loved by the returning remnants of '42 through '46, while basically unaltered, has yet so changed its face that it might truly be said that the mountains are all that have resisted the impetus.

It is thus with a sense of dedication that the GUL makes its reappearance after three years of suspended publication. We look forward to the reestablishment of all that was fine in the Williams of 1941; but more than that, we hope to see molded from the tradition of the past and the hope for the future a liberal arts not just of books but of the breadth and depth of human experience, so that in times to come we may look back upon the years spent in this mountain valley with the thought: "Here we achieved maturity; here was our destiny made clear."

of those whose love of learning and understanding of the true nature of scholarship have left a lasting impression in the minds of the many thousands privileged to know them.

Those pictured here have taken with them little compared to the memories they have left behind. For leaving those memories, for possessing that gift of scholarship that we might more ably understand, we thank them.

Our class is unique in every aspect of its existence, from its own numerals to its varied membership. It emerged from T. J. Wood's files into flesh on October 30, 1943, taking its place as the bottom 27 in a college of 119 civilians. It is the war-time product of a college which President Baxter has told us has been very much in the war. In its official history, in the memories of the three survivors from that first day, Williams has been a different college from that remembered by older alumni. These men have known not only a small college, but a midget college and a small naval base. At a period when other classes have worried about where to spend a long Christmas vacation, or about Sophomore Honors, we were concerned with the relation of our physical defects to the Belgian Bulge.
The class is the sum of college experience for only three men of the men graduating with it. They, by the unimportance of group differences in the midget college, have associated their relations with Baxter, Newhall, "Gus", and all other historical figures more with the classrooms of Stetson and the offices of Hopkins than with that unpredictable changeling, '47-N. Certainly we are not the "great old class" for many of the men with us. We contain militant elements from '42 to '47-J, and have lost our original members to everything from AAF and Inf. to '49-M. Collectively we can sing The Mountains for you, or tell a common story about the Battle of Leyte Gulf, but we have not shared many memorable houseparties or rugged exam weeks.

Not having been a period of physical, sexual, and social exhilaration for the original three, college has, however, given us a more maturing experience than that had by most of the classes in the alumni catalogue. This maturity penetrates more deeply that the fact that small classes and limited diversion exposed us more directly to the intellectual blows and stimulants of Miller, Schuman, or Matthews. It meant that when we wanted a journal on the campus we had to revive the Review or Record, or that our demand for student regulation of conduct meant arguing and voting to create it. More importantly we partook of something so subtle it has never been the place of a class history to try its description: we shared problems of making this college live in an era of departing classmates and faculty. Correlating this maturity is that of the returning members of former classes, whose viewpoints have broadened with their experiences.

'47-N has become more than a Hopkins Hall category in our heterogeneity of the last two semesters. It has come to describe a collection of men with varied experience and affiliation: more than most classes, we must be considered as a kind of curious but happy accident. It has been happy because we have either returned or survived to graduate. Varied and hopeful, our size makes us the first real class of the post-war era.

LIFE AT WILLIAMS in the fall and winter of ’45 and the spring of ’46 could not be labelled “normal” in the same sense that an old grad would use the term. The heterogeneous make-up of the campus population was a source of amazement to any who became associated with it. Men from the classes of ’43 and ’42 ate, lived, and mingled with the neophyte members of 50-M; the freshman plurality in the Berkshire quad was but a mere memory, as all classes were found to be represented there. Despite this lack of class unity, however, there seemed to be ever present the realization that Williams, its war job done, needed the help of all to establish the old order of things with the necessary flairs of the new. To this task each turned willingly.

The opening of the winter term of ’45-’46 presented a strange but welcome picture to all — those who returned, those here through the war years, and the worn-out faculty who had so gallantly fought the battle of Williams-town. Williams, dominated for three years by dress blues and Heat-Power courses, was thankful for three things — (1) Williams men who had been to the wars and were home again; (2) a student body which exhibited the greatest jump in enrollment (civilian) since before the war; and (3) the return of an OSS-wise president, bursting with ideas for the improvement of his Alma Mater.

Another aspect of Williams, which pleased some, haunted others, and frankly made others look aghast, was the aura of femininity invading our purple cloisters. Veterans and wives had come to stay, and speculation ran rampant as to how soon Mrs. Baxter would open a day-nursery at which culture-hungry wives could leave Junior while they absorbed a Schuman lecture. A poll found double beds at a premium, but the apartment quarters in Greylock were pronounced more than adequate by domesticated Williams men.

Eating conditions and dining-room techniques at the newly-instituted common dining room in Currier were reminiscent of the well-remembered Army and Navy methods, but hats went off to Frankie Thoms for the efficient handling of a difficult situation. Bruce Sundlun, head of the provisional student government, reminded many of an Army drill master as he read announcements, but few could complain that they couldn’t hear him.

At the first full college assembly, the student body voted unanimously to reinstate the Honor System, out since the arrival of the Navy in 1943. This move was but one heralding the return of many Williams institutions defunct since the outbreak of the war.

Frank Goodrich, overworked but happy, became official spreader of good will as he and his talented guitar performed jointly for the get-together smokers held in Currier. After these, first names came a little more easily and eyes were soon casting about for suitable presidential material.

The senior class came up with an answer the next week, when Pete Kieman and Brent Washburne were elected to the offices of President and Secretary, respectively. During that week, as all students took advantage of their democratic prerogative, the Juniors, Sophs, and Freshmen helped to fill out the UC with the election of Bruce McClellan, "Cozy" Cole, and Carl Munger as their respective prexies.

During that same eventful week, Williams men gave expression to their social inclinations with an informal Thanksgiving Dance, and the newly-opened recreation centers at the DKE and AD houses were given a suitable baptism. Representatives from Bennington figured largely on the campus that week end, while Vassar and Smith also contributed to the festivities.

Along about this time Coach Clarence Chaffee, blossoming forth in an unexpected capacity, began grooming the diamonds-in-the-rough who were to form the '45-'46 hoop squad, and Bob Muir was getting his Maclay-headed swimming squad into shape for the MIT meet. Intramural basketball and the subsequent inter-dormitory nationalism made Lasell Gym the recipient of much patronage, but Junior-Senior PT proved to be a sore spot responsible for the creation of many sorer ones.

Meanwhile, Pete Kiernan and the UC, grooming themselves in ways political, proposed a student-self-government constitution that was a topic of no small amount of conversation on the campus. Drawing heavily on the 1914 efforts of one Undergraduate James Phinney Baxter III, the UC was aiming at the abolition of the farcical monitor system and ineffective Student Conduct Committee. The newly-proposed organ of government met with the approval of the faculty and administration, and forthwith set up the Upperclass Advisors, headed by Ed Reade and Bill Eames. The SAC, reposing in Ostie's voluminous safe during the war period, was dusted off and set into motion under the tutelage of Hugh Masters, thus rounding off the organizations which were to form the representative Executive Committee. Before the end of the term, the administration was to commend heartily the action of this representative group on the few disciplinary problems to present themselves.

Discussion on atom-bomb topics were current on the campus, as throughout the world, with Prof. Schuman asserting that the only answer to recurring fears lay in the world state. Bringing the question out in the open, the Phil Union pitted the anti-world-state Philosophy Department against the prominent political scientist. Sparks flew and challenges were cast in philosophic fashion, but the final result was termed a draw as the opponents retired with free-will and determinism, respectively, intact.

Rounding off the term was the renowned Xmas Party, given by the freshmen and received with amounts of enthusiasm which varied inversely with seniority on campus. Some of the more serious-minded members of the faculty deplored the return of the demon C₂H₅OH along with other post-war influences. A long siege of hour tests had left the more recent heirs of Eph with few inhibitions, and the chance to let one's hair down was met with unparalleled enthusiasm. The spirit of Yuletide was in the air, and weary undergrads left "the shadow of the hills" for a much-needed breather. Some were slated for a get-together at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook, where Williams Night was to be made merrier by the tuneful melodies of Sammy Kaye and orchestra.

The post-Xmas return to the Berkshires was saddened by the passing of Prof. J. C. Burke, member of the Philosophy Department. Of him, Prof. Miller said: "Without ostentation he cultivated in students a feeling for style and responsible order."

Returning to the campus was Bert Fox, Professor of Economics, back from shaping the war effort of the nation in the WPB; leaving for a well-earned rest was "Pinky" Smith, well-known exponent of the power-driven eyebrow tweezers. Added to the faculty was "Twit" Sheehan, (who was unfortunately not... to arrive until June) as Director of Athletics, and “Whoops” Snively was chosen by the trustees as head football mentor, filling the vacancy left by Charlie Caldwell’s transfer to Princeton.

A rapidly-blossoming sports picture was considerably helped by a resumption of Little Three competition, when Wesleyan hoopsters ran rampant over the Ephs, 59-39. The night all purple-blooded Williams men awaited, however, was Jan. 19, when a century-old Williams-Amherst rivalry was to be renewed at Amherst. Almost running into an overtime period, the game was halted by Dick Hole’s hook shot through the net, and Chafe’s charges were felt to have justified any previous mistakes. A return game on the home court, however, proved not to be so fortunate, and the eternal rivals had to content themselves with a draw for the season.

On Jan. 21 the married veterans again brought fame and publicity to the campus, this time in the form of the radio show, Vox Pop. The success of Frank Goodrich reached its climax at this point, as his performance over the air brought frenzied offers of marital bliss from all corners of the country. Many veterans and their wives cashed in on such miscellanies as washing machines and baby cribs, while Uncle Ed Pieper (freshman) and Nephew George (senior) were living examples of how war can disrupt a man’s education.

The usual trustees meeting in the last week of January proved to be not so usual in many different ways. Hue and cry went up from fraternity and non-fraternity men alike as plans were approved for a freshman commons to be made part and parcel of the plan to continue freshman rushing. Protest was made public in the Record, and a protest meeting of all students interested signified its intention of making concrete its view to the trustees. Not so controversial, but still of considerable interest, was the list of men returning to the faculty from all conceivable war jobs (except riveting, grudgingly relinquished to Rosie), and already the administration was beginning to tear its collective hair over the flood of student applications for admittance pouring into Hopkins Hall.

At a full college meeting, Pres. Baxter quipped that “the Navy had taught the college something about packing them in,” and went on to say that an enrollment of 1100 in September was more than a rumor. With faculty as well as students filling all available living space in town, the administration announced plans to build an apartment block on the Cole Field road, and plans were already under way to open all dormitory space and fraternity houses.

The week end of Feb. 2 brought the long-awaited winter house party, and, in spite of occasional “axes”, an anticipated 200 dates arrived from sundry places, Mount Holyoke being by far the best represented. The UC worked long and hard over much-rewritten plans, Brent Washburne holding the long-distance record as he dashed over Western Massachusetts on the elusive trail of 30 cases of ginger ale, aided and abetted by Harry Bane and Charlie Keith. A gold-plated ersatz version of Bob Chester's regular orchestra furnished mesmeric melodies at the rate of $300-an-hour, Dick Bacon of swimming fame furnished the prettiest date, and the collection of female lovelies furnished an atmosphere on the campus that even the veterans' wives had been unable to duplicate. A newly-revived Octet, the Purple Knights, and a host of other stars did their bit to provide suitable entertainment for all, and return to hard labor on Sunday morning was hard labor indeed.

The closing week of classes brought attention to a flurry of events. Lewis Carroll and Schuman again collaborated to produce a "noble tome" on Soviet Politics (which promptly became a requirement for Pol. Sci. 18), Newhall came out in vigorous attack against malcontent in the nation's armed forces, and the Little Three swimming crown went to Williams as Maclay extended himself to break the New England 440 record. An eventful term closed with the administration's parting shot, finals, and the graduation of four men — C. H. Keith, B. G. Sundlun, R. W. Watson, and D. Ouchterloney.

With the opening of the spring term, there came the by-now-usual influx of old faces, newly-returned. The total enrollment swelled to 508, Frankie Thoms and Brick Anderson went insane with the dignity demanded of Williams men as they searched for food and a waiting staff, and the administration groaned to think of the 1100 predicted for September. At the first college meeting Pres. Baxter reemphasized the obligation owed every veteran by Williams, and pledged that the faculty and facilities would be enlarged to accommodate a maximum of students. Dean Gustafson announced the longest Dean's List in college history, and vets were pleased to learn that they carried the academic ball far better than might... have been expected. At the same time, John Bergamini carried off the only Phi Bete election of the term, and hats went off for a good job done by all.

All work and no play, however, are apt to make Eph a dull lad, and such a state of affairs was far from the minds of any of Eph's descendants. The East College boys revived regimentation to the point where bow ties were the order of the day. Cars of all vintages appeared as restrictions were removed and auto strikes continued. The opening of the '96 House gave the party-minded a place to give vent to their inclinations, and one eager Sophomore attempted to add the social touch to the academic as he broke his leg running blithely across campus to greet Prof. Keller. Several freshmen hearkened back to their Indian ancestry as they sported true Iroquois coiffures, and it seemed that the mixture of frivolity and seriousness was indeed compatible to the tastes of all.

The athletic spotlight turned once more to the Muirmen, who swept to and through the New Englands in a fashion that left little to be desired. Dave Maclay, Dick Bacon, and Sandy Lambert combined to lead the tankmen with three firsts and three seconds, to place Williams well out in front of their closest rival. Scooped by the Berkshire Evening Eagle, the trustees belatedly announced the appointment of big-leaguer Ray Coombs as new baseball mentor, thus bringing a new face into the sports picture.

The usual class smokers followed the college meeting as the semester got under way, entertainment being provided by varied campus talent. Cushing Strout pulled no rabbits from hats (meat shortage as probable cause), but a rapid-fire verbal accompaniment to magical razzle-dazzle gave this budding impressario no mean reputation as the man most likely to succeed if elected to Congress.

Class elections were next on the agenda, the seniors acting consistently in re-naming Pete Kiernan as their proxy and selecting recently-returned Bill Orr as class secretary. Other class elections followed during the same week, the juniors choosing Sam Johnston and Dick Hole, the sophomores Cozy Cole and Dan Wheeler, and the freshmen Ernie Winters and Ed Pieper. Bink Humphreys and Bob Chamberlain filled out the UC as representatives of the married colony, and work was soon started on plans for the Spring Houseparty.

March seemed to outdo itself as it thrust unseasonable summer weather on Billville's inhabitants, and Tennis Coach Chaffee recovered from his delight sufficiently to shoo his charges onto the Sage Hall courts. Lacrosse and baseball teams also took advantage of the weather man's benevolence, but Spring Street sages were justifiably prone to regard the mildness as temporary.

With the added enrollment, extracurricular activities took a new lease on life and began earnest campaigns to snag members. Cole Field Airport re-opened to give Purple airmen a place to roost, and the politically-scientific turned to the International Relations Club under the direction of Norm Redlich. Grant Noble, aided by a re-formed Chapel Committee, decided to begin daily services again and a rushed student body gratefully turned to the noon haven of the Thompson Chapel. The WCA, formerly under the direction of Hank Schoenberger, was sparked by returned President Art Vorys and the first Williams Chest Fund Drive since 1942 was planned.

WMS found Pete Kieman’s “Quiz Show” its greatest drawing card, and the battle of Kieman armed with student questions vs. Newhall, Keller, Vaccariello, Bushnell, and Van Houten proved sound publicity for NBC’s largest competitors in the vicinity of Williamstown (the faculty once again exhibiting their ability to cope with their charges). The Record, battered by campus opinion, revamped policy and promised sound criticism of or cooperation with the student government. Polling the faculty on the all-engrossing Russian issues, the Record found that few were left quaking in their sport shoes by our European neighbor and ally.

As shortages hampered cities and towns across the nation, Williams men praised and deplored Spring Street monopolies which exhibited new wares at new and higher prices, and Frankie Thoms continued to get butter and meat to the tables of Currier Hall although blocked by many obstacles. Married veterans solved a difficult eating problem by forming a cooperative plan at the AD house, “Punky” Ashley and Caroline Herndon (7 months and 6 months, respectively) being junior though vocal members of the association.

Another Williams tradition re-entered the fold on April 22, as Pete Kieman, Ed Reade, Harry Bane, Bill Eames, Art Vorys, Dick Emery, Bob Allen, and Bruce McClellan were tapped for Gargoyle at a full college meeting in Chapin. May was ushered in with the gala Spring Houseparty, and was further edified by the dramatic production, “Dr. Knock”, under the tutelage of Max Flowers. Seniors and sophomores groaned and sweated their respective ways through the Carnegie Graduate exams, and a surprise thesis deadline of May 15 had all typewriters on campus commandeered by frenzied honors students.

Commencement on June 16 ended all worries for the class of 47-N, as 46 men marched down the aisle of Chapin, but the prospect of a summer spent in Williamstown was the source of no little griping on the part of those left behind.

As graduation took place, however, there was a comfortable feeling prevalent on campus. The year had begun with a note of challenge, and was ending with the conviction that that challenge had been met. All saw where improvements could be made, but there was a feeling of pride at having been in on the unearthing and rebirth of Williams after a period of war. This rebirth was still going on, but the necessary foundations had been laid well, and from the lowly freshman to the awesome senior, there was justifiable satisfaction in a job well done.
THE WIVES

It has taken a war to upset the monastic seclusion of weekday Williams. The bachelor serenity to which we were once so resigned has vanished in a whirl of chiffon and Chanel, leaving in its stead a community in which woman has at last taken her place—a place, we might add, heretofore always open for her, but never filled to satisfaction.

The small, if hearty, welcome extended by the college to its "G. I. Brides" pales to insignificance beside the national ovation they have aroused. By the ostensibly simple process of signing a registration card, the Williams G. I. husband automatically projects his wife into the American re-conversion spotlight. We are by now no strangers to the pages of the New York Times. We have been featured in the New York Tribune. We are familiar to the readers of Life Magazine. Traditionally masculine Williams has even broken into that feminine holy of holies, the Woman's Home Companion. And as if that were not enough, twenty-two million radio fans can now say with authority that the married contingent at Williams is richer by the washing machine, ironing boards, silver set, and movie cameras given to them by a generous Vox Pop radio show. Truly we may say that something new has been added. Never in its history has the college enjoyed a period of such remarkable and extensive notoriety.

The number of married veterans now stands over sixty strong. It is a tribute to their wives that they have been so outstanding in every phase of campus activity, curricular or otherwise; it is a further tribute to them that they themselves have done so much to brighten our classrooms, not just by their presence alone, but by their eagerness to learn, an eagerness which has aroused the admiration of the faculty to a man.

To the "G. I. Brides" of Williams, for making the lives of all of us a little more pleasant by their presence, we say "It's good to have you with us."
EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

When the undergraduate body dwindled in '42 and '43, extra-curricular activities at Williams suffered with the rest of the college. The organizations which remained were sadly depleted in membership, for students rushing through college before entering the service had little time for outside interests. One by one the Purple Cow, the GUL, the Phil Union, the Choir, the Flying Club, and even the usual forms of undergraduate government submitted to the inevitable pressure of events and dropped to the melancholy status of a file in Mr. Osterhout's office.

Even for those that remained in existence, survival was difficult. It is really remarkable that as many continued to function as did. They operated on slashed budgets and often had sophomores and even freshmen as top officers. None the less, they got through in condensed form to provide a nucleus for future congregation and regeneration of extra-curricular Williams.

With V-12 cooperation, the unbroken thread of continuity was preserved by the Glee Club, the Outing Club, the Lecture Committee, WMS, and to a large extent the Record. This was truly an achievement for a conglomerate undergraduate body, predominantly Naval in character, whose civilian membership hovered around 100, and which was quite likely to exhibit a complete turnover of personnel every three semesters. The college can take further pride in the fact that it was during this period of upheaval that a student publication dead since 1874 reappeared — the Review.

The inference is obvious: Williams men want these organizations and are willing to work hard to create and to maintain them. During this past winter, the Honor System Committee, the Undergraduate Council, the Student Activities Council, the Phil Union, the Flying Club, the Purple Knights, the Choir, and the GUL have been revived, and a new Upper Class Adviser system has assumed the duties of the prewar Junior Adviser system in the dorms.

The task of revitalizing extra-curricular Williams is almost done. The men who have done this job may justly take pride in their work. These organizations will grow stronger in time and will continue to provide, as they did before, an outlet for the creative and administrative talents of Williams men.
Gargoyle

In April, 1946, Gargoyle, the senior honorary society of Williams College, became active on the campus for the first time since 1943. The official re-opening was announced when seven returning members tapped eight men from the present senior class at a meeting on April 22. According to the traditional standards of Gargoyle, these men were chosen as those who have contributed most to the welfare and interests of Williams; or, in the words of the motto, have taken “active steps for the advancement of Williams in every branch of college life.” Its re-institution provides a council of undergraduate leaders which represents every phase of activity. The re-establishment of Gargoyle symbolizes to undergraduates and alumni alike the rebirth of the highest traditions of Williams.

The Williams Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was founded in 1864 with the aid of Professor James Russel Lowell, president of the Harvard chapter. Gamma of Massachusetts, the Williams chapter of the oldest national honorary society, numbers among its many distinguished members fourteen college presidents, five of them presidents of Williams — Mark Hopkins, Paul Ansel Chadbourne, Franklin Carter, Henry Hopkins, and James Phinney Baxter, III. Other familiar names on the chapter roll are James A. Garfield, Stephen J. Field, William Dwight Whitney, William Cullen Bryant, Hamilton W. Mabie, Francis Lynde Stetson, and Washington Gladden.

Normally, one seventh of the senior class, a proportion contingent on proper scholastic standing, is elected annually to membership in Phi Beta Kappa by the undergraduate members. During the war, however, the number of undergraduate members decreased to such an extent that the Executive Committee had to supervise elections. It is expected that, with the increase in enrollment, the chapter will soon be able to resume its normal program.

The Executive Committee

The Executive Committee was created under the Constitution of the Student Government adopted by the undergraduates of Williams College in November, 1945. Composed of eight voting members — the president and secretary of the Undergraduate Council of the Student Activities Council, and of the Upperclass Advisers, and two faculty representatives appointed by the President, the function of the organization is to recommend and execute necessary disciplinary action arising from infringement of rules of the student legislative bodies and the college authorities. The college administrative authorities have the right of review over any decisions of the Executive Committee, and the area of jurisdiction in individual cases is determined by the President of the Executive Committee, the Chairman of the College Committee on discipline, and the Dean.

The Undergraduate Council

The Undergraduate Council is composed of the elected President and Secretary of each of the four classes. This organization legislates and administers regulations on all extra-curricular activities and all problems which are within the control of the undergraduates acting collectively except those specifically delegated to the Student Activities Council and to the Upperclass Advisors. The president of the Undergraduate Council issues the call for, announces the business of, and presides over all college meetings. He appoints undergraduate committees at his discretion, represents the undergraduates at any occasion of a social nature, and appoints two members of the Council to preside at all Class Elections.

The Student Activities Council is one of the three legislative branches of student government at Williams. Its purposes are to promote the interests of all non-athletic organizations of the college, to supervise and control all funds collected by a tax upon such organizations and upon the student body, and to supervise the management, debts, and obligations of these groups. The council consists of one representative from each non-athletic organization. This post is filled by the business managers of the profit-making organizations and by the president or some special delegate from each non-profit group. In addition, three members of the administration are appointed to the council by the President of the College.

Upperclass Advisers

This group of upperclassmen was formed as a result of the Student Government Constitution adopted in November, 1945. It is one of the three undergraduate legislative organizations and is represented on the Executive Committee. The Upperclass Advisers were organized to replace the discarded system of dormitory monitors, and are responsible for the general conduct of students in the dormitories. They also recommend legislation (for the dormitories) to the faculty and act in an advisory capacity to members of incoming classes.

The Honor System Committee

At the beginning of the fall term, the Honor System and all that it means to Williams men was returned to the campus after an absence dating back to the spring of 1943. At that time the System was dropped at the request of the Navy, and it was only upon the departure of the naval units that it could be re-instituted.

With the help of the two faculty representatives, Prof. Mears and Mr. Webb, elections were held within the various classes for representatives—the Seniors choosing four, the Juniors three, the Sophomores two, and the Freshmen one.

The Williams Christian Association maintained itself through the war years ably, although of necessity in a smaller way than previously. During this past year the Boys' Club has been handled proficiently by Cozy Cole and Chuck Schmidt. The clothes drive for the United Relief Organizations was very successful, and deputations and other welfare work has been carried on in the town and vicinity.

Upon the resignation of Hank Schoenberger as President in March, Art Vorys, a former President, took over the office. Another past President, Bill Schram assisted ably in helping with the reorganization of those activities which were dropped during the war due to the decrease in the College enrollment. Finally, the return of Rev. Grant Noble to the campus has secured the WCA in its former functions even more.

During most of the war, the Williams Record was published by the men of the Navy units stationed here. At the beginning of the fall semester, however, the Record returned to its former status under student management. Editor-in-Chief Richard McElvein, who was closely associated with the college paper during the latter part of its period under Navy management, has provided an excellent link in the transition.

Two of the major undertakings of the Record have been the return to full size sheet and the resumption of the publication of the Adviser, which is mimeographed daily to notify the student body of current meetings, coming events, and notices from the administration.

The only publication on campus during the past year, the Record may well be proud of the way in which it has fulfilled its dual purpose of keeping students and faculty informed about campus events and at the same time relating college affairs to the alumni.
Gul

The publication of this book marks the return of the Gul after an absence of three years. The board has tried to make up in time and energy what it lacks in experience and has attempted to make the book a worthy revival of an old Williams tradition. Due to the confusion of classes resulting from the accelerated system it has made this year’s publication one encompassing the entire student body, rather than just the senior class. They have endeavored to catch the spirit of the year on the campus—the spirit which has manifested itself in the reorganization of activities and athletics, and in the re-establishment of much of the finest in Williams.

Although WMS was one of the few student organizations which carried on at full steam during the war, the return last fall of many former station members including several board heads gave the organization new life. A 500% increase in the number of advertisers has considerably improved the station’s financial situation and has made possible a complete redesign of the network’s broadcasting facilities. A large scale building program is well under way with the construction of a complete new soundproof studio.

The quality of entertainment to be found at 640 (mostly) on your dial has improved noticeably in the last year. The nightly Spotlight Band program, the Mabie Room of the Air, the weekly Quiz Show, and several news broadcasts are a few of the station’s features. Today, WMS is a thriving organization, bringing welcome entertainment to its Williamstown audience.
The Philosophical Union, revived in the fall semester after a lapse of nearly two years, has traditionally contributed to the encouragement of intellectual activity at Williams by sponsoring lectures and discussions on philosophical subjects. The return of a large group of upper-classmen to join the small number of advanced philosophy students of wartime Williams again made possible large student attendance at Union meetings, and this, combined with great interest in the subject among freshmen and sophomores, resulted in the Union's revival. Two fall meetings were held, at the first of which Professor Lawrence Beals presented his views on the undesirability of a world government, and at the second of which Professor Luther Mansfield read a paper on the historical basis of literature. The spring semester opened with Doctor Arthur Smullyan advancing the theory that all philosophic difference is purely linguistic. All three lectures were attended by an average of sixty persons and provoked lively controversy. Plans for the late spring include engagements for outside speakers.

Organized in the spring of 1939, the Williams Lecture Committee's function is to secure a coordinated program of prominent speakers representing a wide range of interests for the appreciation of the student body. Although hampered by the difficulty of securing speakers in the past year, the Lecture Committee succeeded in obtaining several excellent men speaking on topics of contemporary interest. Among them have been: Dr. Ralph P. Winch, of the Williams Physics Department, who spoke on "E=mc²"; Mr. R. R. R. Brooks, Deputy Administrator for Information of the OPA, who discussed strikes and government labor policy; Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, of the Political Science Department, who led a round table discussion on the type of organization the returning veteran wants, at which representatives of the A V C, the V F W, and the American Legion were present; and Mr. Robert Nathan, former Deputy Director of OWMR, who spoke on economic policy and postwar goals.

Under the direction of Prof. R. G. The performers during the 1945-46 season were the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler, Yves Tinayre, Beveridge Webster, the Gordon String Quartet, and Professor Joaquin Nin-Culmell.

Glee Club

Under the able direction of Prof. Robert G. Barrow, the pre-war Williams Glee Club was known as one of the outstanding musical organizations of the East. The general exodus of men from the Williams campus into the services, however, forced the Glee Club to disband in the fall of 1944. A new organization was started in April of 1945. The group which has grown from this reorganization does not come up to pre-war standards of quality, but forms a good cornerstone for future building.

This year, the Glee Club has provided intermission entertainment at the Winter Carnival Formal, and a concert with the Emma Willard School is scheduled this spring. Prof. Barrow hopes by next fall to have a Glee Club capable of adding to Williams' outstanding musical reputation.

The Purple Knights

The November-February semester saw the reorganization of the College Dance Band, the Purple Knights. Capitalizing on the library inherited from the former V-12 band, the Knights managed to gather enough music to play for the Faculty Christmas Party and used the profits to bring their repertoire up to date. The Band was well received houseparty week end, and the warm approval of the student body marked their reestablishment as a Williams organization. Due to the lack of facilities for transportation, the activities of the group were restricted to Williamstown and vicinity; however, future semesters should see some dates at the various New England colleges. The members of the band were Parker Allen, “Cue” Kellogg and Pete Peterson (Saxes); Dick Condon, Bob Schneck and “Pris” Estabrooks (Trumpets) “Bones” Bolens (Trombone), Bob Hoddeson (Piano) and Bob Westervelt (Drums).

Interest in flying among the undergraduates was great enough last fall to permit the reorganization of the Flying Club. The Club's officers, President Louis Chapman and Secretary-Treasurer Owsley Hill, investigated the possibilities of obtaining a plane and a convenient field. A thorough inquest was made, but the approach of winter postponed any definite action. During the winter, the club used the Cole Field Airport's facilities.

At the first meeting of the spring semester, new officers were elected. A board of four, Steve Cushing, Jack Davis, Owsley Hill, and Phil Smith, replaced the president and secretary-treasurer. The Club is now flying from Cole Field by renting an Aeronca and a PT191. At present the group is evenly divided between those who have licenses and those desiring them. The men with flying experience are helping the beginners. In the future, the Club hopes to buy a plane of its own.
Williams Outing Club

The main activity of the Outing Club in the past year has been skiing. Though snow conditions were less than desirable, Sheep Hill was a scene of bustling activity during many winter afternoons. Under the able guidance of Charlie Keith, the Outing Club's President, and of Dick Gray, dexterously watching the financial situation as Treasurer, the season was indeed a successful one with few broken bones and only the usual sprained ankles. The winter was highlighted by the “Snow Bunny” race houseparty weekend when bourbon and nylon prizes went to one expert couple.

The spring season included trail blazing and map-making of the Berkshire Hills, and the Club's two cabins were used extensively by the members.
The Williams Octet

The Williams Octet, aroused this year from a three-year period of inactivity, marked another indication of the campus interest in music. Composed of the Wynn brothers, Bill and Jim, Len Schlosser, Phil Smith, Bill Eames, Frank Goodrich, and Steve Rowan, this group provided the entr'acte entertainment at a number of gala college functions and were a very welcome addition to the campus.

The singing seven who took the name of “The Williams Octet” were given their impetus by the pushing of Len Schlosser and Bill Wynn, who lent their voices to the second tenor and baritone parts, respectively. The group was finally headed by Bill Wynn, who turned a very capable hand to the development of the repertoire. The lyric tenors of the organization were Phil Smith and Steve Rowan with Frank Goodrich helping Len Schlosser out with the second tenor; the Wynn brothers crooned as first basses, and Bill Eames boomed in the cellar.

As the GUL went to press there were still more student activities in the process of formation. The Yacht Club had already run several races, especially in the vicinity of New London, and was proceeding with a complete schedule for the remaining Spring and Summer months. The Adelphic Union had been reformed with Pete Silverstone president and Wallace Barnes secretary. The Griffin, a new literary publication combining the features of the prewar Sketch and Purple Cow, appeared on campus with monthly issues planned. The staff of the GUL regrets that it was unable to present these activities in a more inclusive manner due to our early printing date.
The Faculty Committee on Athletics voted at a meeting May 25, 1943 to discontinue intercollegiate athletics for an indefinite period, primarily because of the country’s entry into the war and the resulting shortage of civilian students, as many were leaving the campus for the service.

In the meantime, the V-5 and the V-12 Navy cadets arrived on the campus, and it became increasingly apparent that athletics were essential not only to the morale of both cadets and civilian students but definitely necessary from a health standpoint.

The Graduate Manager, by vote of the Faculty Committee on Athletics on December 20, 1943, was instructed to arrange a basketball schedule for the winter season and there followed, in addition to basketball, the re-establishment of all the various winter athletic teams — swimming, wrestling, hockey, winter track, squash, and a ski team. Boxing was also introduced as a minor sport.

The Faculty Committee on Athletics approved at various times the resuming of the other pre-war teams, with the exception of football and fencing: baseball, track, lacrosse, tennis and golf followed in the spring, with soccer and cross country in the Fall.

As the College was running on an accelerated schedule of three semesters, baseball was played in the summer of 1944 and 1945, and since no other colleges in the East had summer baseball, our opponents were service teams and industrial teams in the vicinity.

Our civilian group in college got as small as 75 men and as a result most of our teams were made up of Navy V-12 men. Eighty-eight per cent of those participating on the varsity teams were members of V-12 and the balance civilians.

On our Williams teams during the war years we had transfers from Amherst, Harvard, St. Lawrence, Kenyon, Hamilton, Middlebury, B. U. Boston College, Mass. State, R. P. I., and other colleges. These men enjoyed all the rights and privileges of Williams men, and the Williams “W” and certificate were awarded to all members of teams provided they met the Williams letter requirements.

There were several highlights in connection with our World War II intercollegiate program. During the season of 1944 our baseball team defeated Holy Cross 3-2. The varsity swimming team won the New England Championship in 1944 and in 1945 and 1946. For the first time in the history of Williams athletics our opponents, the baseball team of the U. S. Naval Air Station at Quonset, R. I., flew to Williamstown for the game in Douglas R-4.

On January 29, 1946 the Faculty Committee on Athletics voted to resume the playing of intercollegiate football in the Fall of 1946.

Hard-fought, thrilling victories, one over Amherst and two over Trinity, were determining factors which produced a more than successful season for the Williams basketball team. Although the Purple went down to defeat in six games of eleven, the .45 average does not tell the whole story. Of more importance is the fact that the Ephmen registered 462 tallies versus 488 points scored against them, all in contests with strong opponents.

The first Amherst game saw the Chaffee-coached hoopsters administer a defeat to the Lord Jeffs to the tune of 38-36. With Amherst holding a 14-point lead in the latter part of the first half, the Purple club, sparked by Jim Stites, suddenly came to life and cut the Amherst margin in half as the mid-mark gun went off. The second half saw Williams erase the rest of the Lord Jeffs' lead and surge ahead in the final minutes of play, Dick Hole's phenomenal hook shot cinched the victory. This win, plus two overtime conquests of Trinity and an action-packed game with Wesleyan, provided an abundance of thrills for the season.

Coach Clarence C. Chaffee deserves credit for turning a group of novices into a scrappy, aggressive ball club. Dick Hole's brilliant ball-handling, Jimmy Stites' and Bob Johnston's combined 210 points, Fred Scribner's deadly set shots, and the fine work of center Tom Webb and captain Don Ouchterloney all contributed to the success of Williams' first post-war basketball season.

Swimming

Although the swimming team had only two returning lettermen, Captain Dave Maclay and Harry Earle, it did not take long for Coach Bob Muir to get his inexperienced group into top form. The emergence of two freshman swimming stars, Dick Bacon and Sandy Lambert, helped greatly in bringing Williams another New England Championship and another undefeated season. In dual meets, the natators swamped Wesleyan, Trinity, RPI, Amherst, and McGill by decisive scores.

After winning the Little Three Championship in the dual meet season, the Muirmen journeyed to MIT to walk away with the New England Championship. Dave Maclay and Sandy Lambert were then selected to represent Williams in the National Intercollegiate Championships. In this meet, “Big Dave” racked up 14 points to become individual high scorer and to give Williams a tie with Navy for fourth place. By beating Hill of Ohio State, Dave became National 1500 Meter Champion; he also took seconds in the 220 and 440 yard freestyle events, being barely nipped by Hill in both of these races. The following week Maclay continued in his path of glory at the AAU championships at Bainbridge, Md., where he took a fourth in the 220 and a third in the 440. After having gradually lowered New England and college records all season long, Dave put the finishing touches on his efforts at the AAU meet, where he set New England AAU and college records of 2:12.6 in the 220 and 4:48.2 in the 440. These with his New England Intercollegiate records of 2:13.4 and 4:50.8 for the same events place Maclay, according to Coach Muir, among the greatest Williams swimmers of all time.

The excellent records of Dick Bacon and Sandy Lambert as well as those of Maclay help to prove that the fine coaching of Bob Muir has made Williams one of the nation’s leading swimming colleges.

The following men were awarded the major “W” by the Williams College Athletic Council:

Two wins against four losses — while not as successful as could be desired, this year’s squash team none the less can take credit for a well-fought season. The team gained victories over Dartmouth and Deerfield, and lost the first match with Dartmouth and the Army contest by only a few points. Coaches Plansky and Chaffee kept their boys in trim by playing them regularly.

One of the high points of the season was the participation of Ed Reade, Dick Brigham, and Bill Eames in the National Intercollegiate Matches. Ed Reade fought his way to the quarter finals before being eliminated. The college squash championship was won by Dan Rugg.

Wrestling

Working with a relatively inexperienced group, “Uncle Ed” Bullock produced a wrestling team last season that won the Little Three Championship and also had an undefeated season. The first meet produced a purple victory over the boys from Tufts in a closely contested battle, the score of which was 18-16. Wesleyan was neatly beaten 24-11 in something of a walk-away, and Amherst was well slashed to make the Little Three Victory complete. In the Amherst meet the royal purple, captained by Herb Bell, snatched the crown from Amherst’s grasp with Herb Bell, Chuck Blakney, Bart Conant, George Cummins, and Hank Lucas winning their respective events to end the season with an enviable record.

SKI TEAM

The ski team participated in only two meets this winter, one at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival and the other at Middlebury. The team drew heavily on the talents of two exchange students from Norway, Otto Bull and Edvard Tufte, while Dave Clarkson and Charlie Keith helped beginners master the art of the sliding bed slats by instructing PT classes on Sheep Hill. Casualties among the purple snow birds were light, and the consensus of opinion among the team members was that manager Charlie Keith's driving to and from meets was far more dangerous and thrilling than any slope they faced during the season.

TENNIS

With the return of several lettermen of former years, the prospects for this year's tennis team are very favorable. Such veterans of past seasons as Dick Hole, Ed Reade, and George Schmidt, Western Canadian Champion, provide a strong nucleus, while the addition to this group of Fred Scribner, who is seeded fifteenth in the National Junior ranks, gives the team much additional strength. A capable quartet consisting of Jim Stites, Russ Platt, Lou Lincoln, and Pat Humphreys rounds out the squad.

The use of the challenge system in practice matches will keep the team's members scrapping for top positions and means that the line-up will probably be quite different from match to match. The schedule is highlighted by contests with such perennial powerhouses as Yale, West Point, and Dartmouth; but under the able tutelage of Coach Clarence C. Chaffee, the team is confidently looking forward to a successful season.

After having played informally last year, the Williams hockey team was aided greatly by the return of Coach “Whoops” Snively. The team was built around two returning veterans of previous hockey seasons, Captain and defenseman “Chuck” Brothwell and goalie Bill Rossell. Every game brought a noticeable improvement in the caliber of play, and the end of the season showed an efficient, goal-getting brand of teamwork.

Although the short season brought but one victory, of more importance was the experience gained by the younger members of the group, a nucleus for future teams.
RELAY

The Williams winter track season opened with the mile relay in the Millrose Games February 2 in Madison Square Garden. In this race the Planskymen took a fourth place behind Fordham, CCNY, and Miami (Fla.) in that order. The team ran fourth all the way except for a short while when Capt. Sundlun had the Purple runners in third place. The time for Williams was a slow 3:43. A week later at the BAA Games in the Boston Garden the Ephmen took a second place behind Rhode Island, beating out Tufts. Spaeth started, and on his stick pass to Bolin, Williams picked up valuable and decisive yardage. Sundlun maintained the Purple’s position of second and passed the baton to anchorman Weeth. Finishing with a safe margin over Tufts, the team was clocked in 3:37, six seconds faster than the previous week. The only event run this winter was the mile relay. A small squad and short season prevented further competition.

GOLF

A 36-hole qualifying round was held in mid-April for Williams golf enthusiasts. The six lowest scorers in this round were chosen to make up the golf team. Although the scores turned in at that time were not spectacular, the possibility of the team’s being molded into a group of first-rate golfers by regular practice is good, for several smooth swings appeared and many long balls were hit. Since the group is composed largely of sophomores and freshmen, the outlook for future Williams golf teams is excellent.

Baseball

Hopes for the first post-war baseball team are high this spring. A strong returning group of former Williams players, coupled with the appointment of former big-leaguer Ray Coombs as coach should provide the foundation for a smooth-working nine.

The entire first team is composed of veterans, with Jim Young at first, Joe Foley or "Monk" Stanley at second, Dick Emery at short, and John Bridgewater at third combining to form an effective inner defense. Russ Frost, Harry Leyland, Tim Conway, and Frank Todd are leading contenders for the outfield, while Andy Knox will shoulder most of the catching burden. Pitching should be adequate with Bob Chamberlain, Art Jurjurian, Bob Ray, Bob Heywood, and Harry Sutton, the only left-hander, forming a dependable mound staff.

The big question mark is hitting. Frost, Bridgewater, Young, Emery, and Conway are being relied upon to supply the offense. Whether or not a consistent batting attack can be developed will be a determining feature in the team's won-lost record.

Spring Track

The 1946 spring track team is handicapped by a small squad, having only 27 members as compared to a normal complement of 60. There is, moreover, a great difference of strength in the several events. Otto Bull has been leading the two-milers in practice sessions regularly, turning in times under 11 minutes consistently, while Dave Bryan and Howie Dodd are in the 2:05 class as half-milers. "Doc" Weeth and "Beans" Bolin have been running well in the 440, Bolin also doubling in the 220 with Bill Barney. In addition to the 220, Barney has been matching strides with Pete Thexton in the 100 yard dash. The hurdles are capably handled by Gerry O'Brien and Pete Thexton, O'Brien doing the 110 yard highs while the 220 yard lows are Thexton's forte. The field events have two outstanding men in Bob Lewis and Gene Detmer. Lewis has been doing very well in the high and broad jumps, while Detmer takes care of the shot put and discus throw. With these men to rely upon, Coach Tony Plansky hopes to turn his small but willing group into a winning team.

Lacrosse

With no returning lettermen to form a nucleus, the 1946 lacrosse team has been forced to start from scratch. Coach A. Barr “Whoops” Snively spent the early part of the season teaching a squad of nineteen men the fundamentals of the sport. By the time the first game rolled around, the starting line-up consisted of Pat Graney, Ed Manard, and Chuck Blakney at attack, Gil Lefferts, Howie Adams, and Pete Abbey on defense, and Art Lewis, Dick Lambert, and Ronnie Chute in the midfield, with Dave Maier protecting the goal. Of these the outstanding players are Pat Graney and Ed Manard, who spark the offense, and Gil Lefferts, whose quick thinking and finesse holds the defense together. Under the guidance of Coach Snively and Manager Charlie Bigelow, the inexperienced team hopes to make a creditable showing on a schedule full of powerful opposition.

Other sports teams were being formed on campus when the GUL went to press. The Williams Yacht Club was being readied to sail for the honor of old Eph, and a revitalized golf team was taking preliminary swings on the fairways and on the greens under Greylock’s shadow. Everyone was looking forward to the formation of the first postwar football team which would be on the field by Fall, 1946. The staff of the GUL regrets that it was unable to include these and other teams as yet unorganized.
COMMENCEMENTS SINCE JUNE, 1944

Since the GUL has not appeared on the campus for three years, and no yearbook has appeared for two years, the staff of the GUL thought it only right that mention should be made at this time of those Williams men who have graduated since the last yearbook in June of 1944.

NORTH ADAMS
Live in Seersucker suits this summer. Buy several and enjoy a really extensive wardrobe... for these versatile suits have a knack for serving in numerous ways. They're the perfect business suits... cool, smart, comfortable. And that's not all. Campus fashion authorities recommend the seersucker jackets with flannel slacks. For active sports, there's cool freedom in seersucker slacks with casual shirts... and the suits are vacation requisites! Lorraine-Haspel Seersucker is long wearing... Easily refreshed...shape holding...guaranteed not to shrink, fade or discolor. So inexpensive you can afford several. The smartest cool suit... the coolest smart suit.

Meet, Treat and Trade at

HART'S

THE STORE WITH THE FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE
When in 1886 F. R. Tripler founded this store, he decided that service and dependability were good, definite ideals to support his name. That he was right is today evidenced by the fact that leading sportmen, business executives, professional and university men patronize this store.

The ideals behind the Tripler label are known here and abroad as marks of distinction and character. While we own the name, in reality it belongs to you who have made it your standby for so long. It has been our constant aim to uphold those ideals for which the name stands. This we have done and pledge ourselves to keep doing throughout the years to come, and in these unusual times our personalized service continues as always.
